The new collection method, in addition to allowing for a more orderly and cleaner delivery, has as its objective a better differentiation of waste and greater fairness, as it will allow the Municipal Administration, once the experimental phase is over, to adopt a new calculation of the tariff, based on the actual number of emptyings of the containers of each individual user: the charge, in essence, will be proportionate to the actual production of unsorted waste.

The commitment of those who better differentiate their waste and those who undertake to produce less, also by changing their purchasing choices and consumption habits in order to achieve greater environmental sustainability, will be concretely recognised.

We thank you in advance for your precious collaboration and sharing of attention to environmental protection.
